‘Grinch’ given diverted sentence

Compton owes over
$8,400 in restitution to former employees

By Ben Carlson
News staff

The former operator of a Dairy Cheer restaurant in Lawrenceburg received a three-year diverted sentence for stiffing a dozen employees out of over $8,000 in pay in 2011. Dubbed as “Dairy Grinch” because their paychecks started bouncing and she closed the Lawrenceburg location just before Christmas, Lou Emma Compton will remain on supervised probation during her sentence.

She will also have to make what court records show to be $8,419.75 in restitution to her former employees, the schedule for which is expected to be settled in a separate court order.

Diverted sentence for stepfather of tied up child

By Ben Carlson

The stepfather charged with first-degree criminal child abuse for his role in tying up a 3-year-old child for up to 16 hours a day received a three-year diverted sentence last Friday in Anderson Circuit Court.

Herbert Medley, the 3-year-old’s stepfather, accepted a plea deal with the Commonwealth Attorney’s office and entered an Alford plea, which essentially means the evidence against him would likely lead to his conviction but that he doesn’t have to

District doesn’t allow use despite ongoing debate over context

“It’s not OK and it’s not as common in the young African American homes or social surroundings as the media portray. Walk the Anderson County school halls and see how they are disrespected having to hear their fellow Caucasian peers use the word freely because they’ve been told it’s a figure of speech.”

—Hope Bixler Franklin

When former UK guard Andrew Harrison mumbled the N word during a postgame press conference after his team fell to Wisconsin, the word’s use once again became the subject of debate, including who can use it and in what context.

In a letter to the editor that appears in this week’s paper, an African American Lawrenceburg resident says the word is used by both black and white students in Anderson County schools, a claim that school officials don’t deny.

“There are other ways to greet one another than a high-five and a “What up, my ni**er?” And yes, this is from Caucasian youth in the hallways of our Anderson County school system,” Hope Bixler Franklin says in her letter, a response to a column in last week’s paper by Sports Editor John Herndon.

Woman fumes after plow wrecks mailbox

Deer Run Road resident sends fiscal court bill for damages

By Ben Carlson
News staff

Rosie Wells is getting angrier by the day.

She started out miffed when an Anderson County Highway Department plow struck and ruined her mailbox on Deer Run Road during a Feb. 16 snowstorm.

She got a little more upset when the driver of the truck didn’t stop to discuss the matter with her.

Her anger grew when days passed without anyone with the highway department contacting her, and angrier still when no one came out to fix her mailbox despite several calls to the judge-executive’s office.

After three full weeks of waiting for a new mailbox, Wells took it upon herself to replace it and decided to send the Anderson County Fiscal Court a bill totaling $279.74 for doing so that included materials and labor.

A Lawrenceburg man said he was all set to turn himself into police Tuesday on a host of outstanding warrants.

He didn’t get the chance.

Instead, Johnathan Powell, 25, of 1021 Sunrise Lane went to jail a day early after being charged with first-degree heroin trafficking following a traffic stop at the intersection of Hilltop Drive and Court Street.

Powell, who was wanted on several warrants for violating his parole, told police he was preparing to head to jail the next day, and was stocking up on provisions for the trip.

Detective Jeremy Cornish said along with heroin, Powell had marijuana and tobacco stuffed into the several fingers he had cut off a glove, along with a jar of petroleum jelly he planned to use to hide the contraband in a place police weren't likely to find it. "That's what he told us," Cornish said.

"He had the fingers from the glove tied up tight and wrapped with black tape, sort of like 3-inch long pellets, and a jar of Vaseline. He was going to try to smuggle that into the jail."

Cornish, along with Chief Chris Adkins, Sgt. Chris Beach and officers Joe Massey and Kenny Goodlett made the bust after pulling over a minivan in which Powell was a passenger.

Two women in the van were searched but not charged.

Cornish said he received a tip from an undercover informant about Powell's whereabouts before making the arrest.

Cornish said he has arrested Powell several times, including for thefts at Huddle House and Taco Bell while working there and for attempting to steal money from a pair of two Taco Bell workers as they were making a deposit at Main Source Bank.

Cornish said Powell had recently been released from jail on charges that he stole checks from his grandfather along with fraudulently using his grandfather's credit and debit cards.

Cornish said Powell has told him during previous arrests that he was stealing the money to feed his children and that he had a drug problem.

Dozens of workers filed complaints with the Anderson County Attorney's office, which worked with the Anderson County Sheriff's Office to investigate.

Compton was tracked down in Michigan by Det. Sgt. Bryan Taylor last year, who had her extradited back to Kentucky and placed in the Shelby County Detention Center on a $5,000 cash bond.

Lawrenceburg residents stepped up and donated thousands of dollars in money and gifts several days later when ousted employees gathered in the West Park shopping center.

Former store manager Catherine Zimmerman said at the time that she could tell things were going bad with the store shortly before it closed.

Zimmerman said Compton paid employees in early December but then, one by one, checks started to bounce, including Zimmerman's.

She added that she knew things were going bad when contractors who worked to remodel the facility started demanding payments and told the owner they would only continue their work for cash.

She said employees were told they'd be compensated for the bounced checks, in addition to their overdue paychecks, by Dec. 16 of 2011.

"I came in Friday morning, expecting to be paid," she said.

Rather than being paid that evening, employees working that day were visited by an accountant, asked to turn in their keys, and then watched a locksmith change the locks two hours later.

"This is it. She's not gonna pay us. She's gonna run," Zimmerman said of her reaction to turning in her keys and witnessing the locks being changed.

Informed Tuesday morning by The Anderson News that the fiscal court voted a week earlier to only pay her $83.39, Wells was incredulous.

"Wow, that's just so generous of them," Wells said sarcastically. "It's just unbelievable. I'm so aggravated at the road department, and I'm disappointed in our government in Anderson County. I really am."

Asked if she had been contacted by the fiscal court a week after its decision, Wells said no.

"I wasn't even notified that my problem was on the agenda for the meeting," she said. "If you're asking me if anyone has contacted me, the answer is no."

The fiscal court voted last Tuesday to pay Wells for her material costs of $58.39 plus two hours of labor at $12.50 per hour, the average hourly wage at the high department.

Wells billed the county $25 an hour for her labor for a total of $181.25, which included time she spent shoveling snow out of her way, digging a trench to drain water away from the location and the time it took her to set a post, install the mailbox and pour concrete into the hole.

On Monday, Judge-Executive Orbrey Gritton said he had previously spoken with Wells.

"I know she's less than happy," Gritton said. "Typically, if we hit a mailbox we'll go out and buy one and put it up for them. This one fell through the cracks. She called a couple of times and took it upon herself to put one up, and I don't blame her."

Wells said previously that if the fiscal court refused to pay the bill she sent, she would take the matter to court.

On Tuesday, she clearly wasn't happy with the outcome but had softened her stance on a lawsuit.

"I try to go to church every Sunday and the pastor said you have to learn to let things go," she said.

admit wrongdoing.

Medley is the only one of three people involved in the case not to go to prison. His wife, Rebecca Medley, and the child's surrogate grandmother, Carolyn Case, were each sentenced to five years, the maximum sentence they could receive.

In those cases, the Commonwealth's Attorney's office did not make a plea offer and held out for maximum sentences.

David Nutgrass, assistant Commonwealth's Attorney, explained Monday why he made a plea offer with Herbert Medley.

"We have always thought that Herbert was less culpable than the other two," said Nutgrass. "We thought that from the very beginning."

The Medleys and Case were all charged nearly three years ago in the case, which originated following an investigation by the Kentucky State Police.

Case and Rebecca Medley admitted to the tying up the child, according to police reports, but Herbert Medley said he never participated in the activity and kept quiet to avoid getting kicked out of Case's home.

Man sentenced to 10 years in home invasion case

Judge rejects request for probation

By Ben Carlson
News staff

The man who pleaded guilty to sticking a gun in the faces of two teenagers during a robbery was sentenced to 10 years in prison Friday in Anderson Circuit Court.

Kendall Cunningham, 19, was denied his attorney's attempt to be placed on probation due to what Circuit Court Judge Charles Hickman said were the seriousness of his crimes.

Just how long Cunningham will remain behind bars is uncertain. During Friday's hearing, it appeared that Cunningham will be credited with roughly 700 days of time served for time he was incarcerated following his arrest along with time he spent on home incarceration.

Also, because he committed his crimes while under the age of 18, Cunningham isn't required to serve 85 percent of his prison sentence because juvenile at the time of his arrest.

Had he been an adult, he would have had to serve 85 percent because his was a violent crime.

Instead, Cunningham will likely be eligible for parole after serving 20 percent, or two years, most of which he was already given credit for.

Cunningham was the first the four people involved in what was called a home invasion to be sentenced in the incident at a Citation Lane residence that occurred in February of 2013. Also charged were Andrew Muns, Charles Peach and Ryan Ashburn, all of Lawrenceburg.

Muns disappeared after being released on bond but has since been returned to custody.

Cunningham wore a bandana over his face when he, Muns and Peach entered the residence. Police said Cunningham pointed a handgun at two teenagers inside the home and threatened them.

During the invasion, police said, Cunningham removed the gun's magazine and showed the two teenage victims that the gun was not fake, and that it was loaded.

Cunningham, who was charged with first-degree robbery, first-degree burglary, stealing two guns and tampering with evidence, contended that the gun he used during the robbery was not real.

The theme of the event is "Heroes," and there will be representation from the fire and police departments as well as EMS and the National Guard, organizers said.

WORD

Figure of speech or hateful slur against a person of color, Superintendent Sheila Mitchell on Monday said the word is not allowed in school.

"It's just not acceptable," Mitchell said. "Even if it's among friends, it can still be hurtful, regardless of intent. We have to teach our children what's appropriate and how to be respectful."

In her letter, Franklin said she agrees the word's use is never appropriate and rejects the notion that it's commonplace among African Americans.

"It's not OK and it's not as common in the young African American homes or social surroundings as the media portray," she wrote.

"Walk the Anderson County school halls and see how they are disrespected having to hear their fellow Caucasian peers use the word freely because they've been told it's a figure of speech."

"It's not OK for Donald Sterling to say it, or Andrew Harrison, who lost a lot of respect and credibility with three stupid words."

Following Harrison's use of the word, the debate over how the word is used brought to light the belief of some that it is acceptable for use by African Americans as a term of endearment or as a casual greeting among each other.

Brian Eldridge, an African American journalist who covers college football recruiting in Kentucky for Scout.com, agreed with Mitchell that the word should not be used in schools, but explained how it is often used in the African American community.

"Everyone doesn't get it," he said. "It's not about being racist as much as it's about being a substitute word for other words. It's like calling someone a fool, an idiot or even your friend."

"As long as I can remember, I've heard it. Growing up with my friends, we used it way too much in our teen years. You get used to hearing it, but if someone else says it, unfortunately we get offended."

Eldridge said he understands why schools would ban the word but realizes that getting students to stop saying is an uphill battle.

"I've done some substitute teaching and had a lot of black kids in my class who would say, 'You're black, you understand,'" he said. "I'd say I do understand, but you shouldn't say that here. It's so entrenched, it's almost impossible to stop because it's part of our culture ... part of our dialect."

Mitchell said regardless of how it's used, others who overhear the word might not understand how it's being used and could take offense.

"Whether it's intended to be casual, it can still be perceived or come across as hurtful among peers or those who overhear it," she said.

"How it sounds can be misconstrued."

Mitchell said the Harrison incident highlighted for her the debate over the word's use.

"I really didn't know the degree that it was used until the Harrison comment was made and how common it is to hear those types of comments made," Mitchell said. "Now that we're more aware of it, we have to make sure we are being proactive and addressing it as educators."

—Sheila Mitchell
Superintendent

as educators."

Anderson County High School principal Chris Glass acknowledged the word's use in the school but said it's not something he hears very often while walking the halls.

"I do not hear the word used a lot, whether against African Americans or whites," Glass said. "You can hear a lot walking the hallways, but not that on a regular basis."

Glass said regardless of context, he addresses the use of the word and makes sure that students who say it understand that doing so is unacceptable.

"Our goal is to teach students that it isn't appropriate," he said. "If we hear it, it's addressed whether it's two buddies talking or used in anger."

Mitchell said by the time the word's use gets to her office, it's typically after a student has used the word in a hateful way.

"The ones I hear about mainly are with ill intent, or at the very least the perception was ill intent," she said.

Mitchell said the school district has policies in place and works directly with students to teach them what is acceptable in all of the schools.

"It's a teachable moment," she said. "We just try to teach respect."

Heroin bust a reason to cheer

SMH over dump truck at compactor

Column as I see 'em ...

It was with great pleasure that I photographed the scene of a heroin bust conducted early Monday evening by the Lawrenceburg Police Department.

When it comes to police getting that garbage off the streets, the dispassionate journalist in me takes a vacation and I actually feel like cheering while taking photos.

Lawrenceburg, like so many other communities in Kentucky and across the country, is lousy with heroin and the problem continues to get worse.

The blame is typically assigned to former pill poppers who lost their ability to easily score opiates in that format when police cracked down on pill mills and the dirt-bag doctors who ran them.

Enter heroin, a cheaper and more easily obtained opiate that wreaks havoc on users and their families, and has become the overwhelming root cause of the crimes committed here.

Ben Carlson
Publisher

I'm frankly more than sick of the taxes I pay for investigating, busting, trying and incarcerating these people. Yeah, yeah it's a sickness and all of that, but if you don't stick that needle in your arm, that's a disease one cannot catch.

So forgive me if I shake my metaphorical pom-poms when I see police cuff and stuff someone dealing, using or just dabbling in that junk.

Of course that entire operation is in limbo while the fiscal court tries to figure out how to stop losing $100,000 a year or more in recycling costs, but last I knew, the compactor was supposed to be used by residents getting rid of their junk, not as a way for contractors to save the cost of disposing of materials from jobsites.

Speaking of root causes ...

I hate to pile on about the recycling debacle that has so badly injured the fiscal court's financial well being, but what I saw Saturday just makes me shake my head. (Or, in the vernacular of the young folks on Twitter these days, SMH.)

I pulled into the county highway facility to junk an old bicycle, a throw rug and a very sad looking Christmas tree only to get in line behind a large dump truck offloading what appeared to be siding and other construction materials.

Of course that entire operation is in limbo while the fiscal court tries to figure out how to stop losing $100,000 a year or more in recycling costs, but last I knew, the compactor was supposed to be used by residents getting rid of their junk, not as a way for contractors to save the cost of disposing of materials from jobsites.

That went on in the past and was stopped, as it should be.

While the fiscal court continues to figure ways to climb out of the financial morass it's in, perhaps it would be wise to stop that again.

Speaking of a morass ...

I thought long and hard before producing the story on the front page about the use of the N word and am happy that I chose to breach the subject.

That word has been debated far and wide, particularly as to its use among some African Americans who, I've been told, use it among themselves in conversation and aren't particularly interested in being told they can't.

I don't blame them for that, because I'm not real big on being told what I can or can't say, either.

Over time, this 52-year-old white guy from a small all-white town has come to understand the difference between African Americans saying it to each other vs. having someone call them that in a hateful way. Some immediately call that a double standard, but I'm not convinced that's true. Hate comes in many forms but few are as biting and lasting as the words used to express it.

It's fairly obvious that someone using that word negatively toward an African American is entirely different than the way some of them use it in reference to each other.

That being said, I'm going to pick up my pom-poms again and congratulate Superintendent Sheila Mitchell and high school principal Chris Glass for how the district is dealing with that word's use in the schools.

Like many other words, some are simply not appropriate in a business or professional setting, which is clearly what schools are designed to be.

Along with the three R's, the district is also supposed to be teaching our children how to properly conduct themselves, and instructing them that a school is not an appropriate place for what many consider offensive language, any more than is an office setting or other workplace.

Addressing misunderstandings, concerns from 2015 session

Since concluding the 2015 legislative session, I have had the opportunity to finish reading e-mails and phone messages from many of your readers. improve employee salaries in 2016. For me, this will be a top priority in the session.

Kentucky Employee Retirement System (KERS)

During the 2013 Legislative Session the General Assembly took definite steps to protect KERS. The state actuarial group recommended that an "annual" appropriation be made by the Legislature that would make the System solvent in 20 years.

Many have been concerned about the allocation of approximately $63.5 million from the Public Employee Health Insurance Fund to the State Budget Reserve Fund.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

N word shouldn't be used at all

To the editor:

I am going to cut to the chase with Sports Editor John Herndon's column last week titled "Harrison's words a reflection of society."

The one line, "Some downplay the racial slur as common language among young African Americans." Yes, I noticed he said "some," but it's now just as much, if not more of young Caucasian males and females throwing the N word around as everyday common language.

There are other ways to greet one another than a high-five and a "What up, my ni**er?" And yes, this is from Caucasian youth in the hallways of our Anderson County school system.

I remember growing up being called out of my name because of the color of my skin. Those were fighting words. At least then, the student with the verbal abuse was expelled.

Now, from elementary to high school, it's now considered a figure of speech.

When you say "I get that," you're acknowledging that our culture, my culture, thinks that it is socially acceptable. It's not!

I don't care how Wikipedia breaks it down to show it's not meaning anything wrong, it's still as hurtful and demeaning.

Forget "washing your mouth out with soap," if one of my kids say either one of the two out of three words Andrew Harrison used, child protective services would be called to my house.

It's not OK and it's not as common in the young African American homes or social surroundings as the media portray.

Walk the Anderson County school halls and see how they are disrespected having to hear their fellow Caucasian peers use the word freely because they've been told it's a figure of speech.

It's not OK for Donald Sterling to say it, or Andrew Harrison, who lost a lot of respect and credibility with three stupid words.

Big shout out to firefighters

To the editor:

I am writing to send a big thank you to the men and women in the local volunteer fire department who came to our rescue April 1.

My hero, my son Kaleb Diaz who is 10 years old, called 911 and the fire and rescue were there within minutes to extinguish the fire that had gotten out of control when simply trying to burn leaves in the ditch line.

A big thank you to Dennis, a local neighbor passing by, who stopped and was very supportive during this time. The same week the flood in Glensboro occurred and these same heroes were witnessed by us rescuing the lady from the house that had raging floodwaters from Salt River surrounding it.

A huge shout out, too, to my friends and neighbors who graciously volunteer to give their time and efforts to this very heroic profession. I have never experienced such need and hope we never do again, but in the meantime I have learned a valuable lesson as well as experienced first hand the unselfish acts that these volunteers give every day.

Thankful for Boot Drive

To the editor:

April is Child Abuse Prevention Month and the Anderson County Ad Hoc Committee for CASA held its annual Boot Drive April 4.

Thanks to city firefighters Katherine Read, Michaela McCane, Morgan Penn, Tim Read, Theresa Fannin, T.J. Hannah and Allen Davenport, we doubled the money we raised last year.

Committee members working were chairperson Ginny Smith, Sue Ritchey, Chris Dillon, James Sargent, Dan Stumph, Diana Hill, Nettie Halvorson and Shirley Thornberry. Other volunteers were Hannah Smith Curry, Morgan Davenport and CASA mascots Natalie Nichols and Carter Smith.

Volunteers enjoyed a picnic at Ace Hardware provided by member Chris Dillon.

We were able to raise $2,531 to help provide an advocate in court for abused and neglected children.

Grow ginger to ease colds, soothe muscles

Let's all toast the sun. Life is bursting out all over. The trees are either budding or blooming, and the lawns are verdant green. It's those over achievers in the yard that are driving me crazy. Those military tough broadleaf weeds and wild garlic just want to be outstanding. Before you break out the mowers, let's hit them with a little killer.

I use apple cider vinegar, full strength, to kill weeds, primarily because I'm a one-and-done kind of girl. Typically, it works the first time. I spray it on grass in the gravel. Do not use it around any plants you want to keep, unless you can do a direct stream onto just the unwanted plant. I also use it inside around doors and window frames, to keep little crawlers out.

All this rain has created mushy planting fields here, so expect a week or two delay in vegetable production of all sorts this summer. Our nation's breadbasket is having the opposite problem. California is the biggest producer of our fruits and vegetables and it is suffering from the worst drought ever. Yes, it will impact us right here in Anderson County. Expect prices to go up and quality to go down. Just another reason to grow as much of your own food as you can possibly grow.

I don't spend a lot of money on doctor visits and medicine. Well, except the dentist, sorry Doc. I just can't grow that filler stuff. I can grow ginger root and you should, too. Ginger is an amazing plant and if you suffered from colds and flu this winter, then you need to grow this plant. It's easy.

Ginger is an herb, but the top of the plant looks like bamboo that grows to about 3 feet tall, in a pot. We can't grow it outside here so start looking for a pot about the size of a hanging basket, just deeper. It is used as a spice, but I use it for its medicinal properties. I grate the root, put it in a tea ball and drink the tea.

Ginger root tea can be used to treat all kinds of stomach problems, muscle soreness, and respiratory tract infections like bronchitis, just to name a few. It's especially helpful for nausea caused by cancer treatments and asthmatics. Ginger contains chemicals that reduce the nausea and inflammation. Do not use it if you use blood thinners or have a bleeding disorder.

You can buy ginger root to use and grow at Kroger. If you let it sit on the counter a

Learn how to manage diabetes

There are about 370,000 people diagnosed with diabetes in Kentucky. This number may be larger if we consider that an additional 137,000 individuals are undiagnosed, making a total of 507,000 living with diabetes. Kentucky has the sixth highest rate of diabetes in the nation, making it important for us to take action.

Joan Martin
Guest columnist

Diabetes is serious disease. It can lead to complications such as heart disease, high blood pressure, blindness, kidney disease and amputations. If you have diabetes you should know that diabetes is a controllable disease.

If you are newly diagnosed or if you have lived with diabetes for a number of years and have not done a good job managing your blood glucose in the past, spring is a great time to take steps to be more successful in this area. If you take steps to control your blood glucose, you are more likely to have higher energy and feel less tired and thirsty. You may also reduce the problems associated with having diabetes.

Here are some steps you can take for diabetes management.

Learn all you can about diabetes

Know your ABCs (A1C, Blood pressure and Cholesterol.)

A1C: Your A1C shows how well you have been controlling your blood glucose over the previous three months. The A1C goal for most people is less than 7; however, your doctor decides the A1C goal that is best for you.

Blood pressure: People with diabetes are more likely to develop high blood pressure or hypertension. It is important to control your blood pressure. You can do this by reducing sodium, taking part in physical activity and maintaining a healthy weight. Use alcohol in moderation and if you smoke, try to get help to quit the habit.

Cholesterol: When you have diabetes, you are more likely to develop heart disease. You can limit foods high in cholesterol. Limit the use of solid fats, such as butter, lard or shortening. Instead use canola, safflower, sunflower, soybean and olive oils.

If you are newly diagnosed or if you have lived with diabetes for a number of years and have not done a good job managing your blood glucose in the past, spring is a great time to take steps to be more successful in this area.

Learn how to live with diabetes. It is easy for diabetics to become overwhelmed by the daily tasks needed to manage their diabetes. Added to this, many have to deal with stress in their lives. Stress can raise blood glucose, so take steps to manage stress by talking to someone, asking for help when you feel down and taking part in activities that lower stress.

Living with diabetes means eating well, being active and taking your medicine the way your doctor instructed. You should also keep track of your blood sugar level, check your feet for blisters or cuts and keep gums and teeth healthy.

Get routine care to stay healthy. You should see your health care team at least twice a year. When you visit your doctor remember to have your blood pressure, weight and feet checked.

Taking Control of Your Diabetes will be offered at the Anderson County Senior Center. The eight-week program begins on April 24 at 10:30 a.m.

Call the Extension office at 502-839-7271 or the Senior Center at 502-839-7520 to register for the free class.

This program is presented in cooperation with local health care providers and the Anderson County Extension office.

day or two you'll see a green sprout pop up. You'll know it's ready then to be broken into golf ball size pieces and placed in rich, well-draining soil, an inch deep. One pot can accommodate four pieces. The plant likes warmth, humidity and filtered sunlight. It takes eight to 10 months to grow the rhizomes that are used for the tea. You can gently dig out one plant at a time and leave the rest to grow.

I store my ginger root by wrapping it in aluminum foil, placing it in a Ziplock, and then keep it in the freezer. Let a little piece thaw a bit before grating it for use. It tastes spicy, a little like pepper, but I like it and always feel better after I drink it.

Now, if you haven't stayed in shape this winter, you might want to pick up some ginger root to soothe those sore muscles from all that yard and garden work.

The sun is out and we should be, too. If we can just squeak a little work in between these rains. Happy growing.

jointly purchase health insurance coverage from the Trust. The State contributes approximately 84 percent of the cost and employees contribute about 16 percent. The administration considers this as the purchase of a service. Thus, employees and the State purchased health insurance for the calendar year and in 2014 that benefit was provided. Each plan year stands alone and the balance in one year does not necessarily affect the plan in another year.

If the estimate for a plan year is short then the state would be required to make up the difference, not the employees. Premium levels for each plan year are determined by the actuary based on past claims.

A portion of the reallocation, as defined in House Bill 510, is to be used for substance abuse treatment under the Heroin Bill. The funds are being transferred from plan year 2014.

Kentucky Teachers Retirement System (KTRS)

Teachers have understandably been concerned over the KTRS funding. House Bill 4 called for the purchase of bonds to fund the deficit. The Senate Majority Party disagreed with the House bill and responded with a plan to just study the problem until the next session. I supported HB 4 but could not support the Senate's proposal. I voted against the Senate plan. The issue failed to be settled in the session, but it must be settled in the 2016 session.

The General Assembly passed legislation to lower and freeze the current tax rate for gasoline in order to further avoid a reduction in revenue to the Road Fund. With the drop in gas prices in December, the road fund had a potential loss of approximately

In addition, the average county government would have lost approximately 32 percent of its budget. The gasoline tax we pay fixes a lot of potholes, provides new road construction, repairs and maintains.

Heroin epidemic

The deadly heroin epidemic has now spread throughout our Commonwealth. It has greatly impacted the costs to our health care system and that does not even include the deaths, ruined families and the increase in crime that result from this scourge on society.

Senate Bill 192 provides a treatment program for individuals addicted to heroin and increased penalties for dealers.

It will be up to local communities to decide if they wish to participate in the needle exchange program in order to reduce the spread of many diseases.

I hope I have addressed some of the concerns of your readers. Anyone who has additional questions, please feel free to contact me.

Circuit Clerk's office celebrates Donate Life month

From staff reports

Circuit Clerk Pamela Robinson said she invites residents to join her in recognizing National Donate Life Month this April, a month-long celebration that showcases the various perspectives of those touched by donation and transplantation, according to a news release.

Every year since 2002, April has been filled with stories to spread the lifesaving message of donation in order to motivate people to register as organ, eye and tissue donors.

This year is especially exciting as the release date for the new Donation Awareness plate was launched on April 1. Everyone can register as a donor today at www.donatelifeky.org or saying "YES" when you renew your driver's license, the news release states.

Carolyn Adkins, from Pike County, is certainly thankful for the lifesaving gift of donation. She had lived a healthy life, even teaching Silver Sneakers workout classes, but she began to lose energy. She went to the hospital and learned that only 25 percent of her heart was working. A heart transplant was her only hope for a life.

"You read this sort of thing that happens to other people. I'm just a regular person, but it happened to me and my family."

Fortunately, a matching donor was found and now Carolyn is living life to the fullest and sharing her story to show the lifesaving power of donation.

"My donor is the real hero. I'm very thankful for them and pray for them. They are indescribably wonderful. I have a wonderful life now - through God, through my donor family, through my doctors."

Sam loves doing things any 10-year-old boy loves to do: drawing, fishing and riding his bike. But he cannot do much in his current state of health. Sam needs a lifesaving pancreas, small bowel and liver transplant, so he can go back to being a normal kid again. Sam has a champion in his mom, Mallory, who is fully invested in spreading the message of Donate Life.

"We have Donate Life license plates for our cars, distribute bracelets and pass out brochures," said Mallory. "We take part in events at Sam's school and in the local community, doing anything we can to share the importance of registering as a donor. We are so hopeful that Sam will receive the transplant he needs, and we hope to take a family trip to the beach once that happens!"

Approximately half of the U.S. adult population is registered as donors, including 1.5 million Kentuckians. Still, the number of people in need of transplants continues to outpace the number of donor organs. On average, 21 people die each day because the organs they need are not donated in time. Registering to become a donor is the most effective way to ensure you can save lives through donation and serves as a sign of hope to those like Sam who continue to wait.

As of April 1, there is an extra way to show your support for this mission. Kentucky now has a Donate Life license plate available for purchase. Please note: License plates are issued at the County Clerks, not the Circuit Clerk's office.

The Anderson County Circuit Clerk's office is looking forward to this new awareness opportunity for a mission close to their hearts, Robinson said.

Robinson has been a long-time supporter of the gift of organ donation by working with the KY Circuit Clerks' Trust For Life. Each day, the driver's license office helps to save lives by growing the confidential Kentucky Organ Donor Registry.

"This mission is easy to stand behind, as we all know someone who has been touched by the gift of donation and miracle of transplantation. It is an honor to help save lives and educate the public about the importance of organ donation through the dollars we collect at driver's license and by growing the Registry. We ask every person that comes in if they would like to be a registered organ donor," explains Robinson. "Anderson County has added more than 7,991 names to the Kentucky Organ Donor Registry. From this time last year we have added almost 1,000 names to Registry."

The Donate Life plate encourages individuals to put the gift of donation into perspective stating 'Organ, Eye and Tissue Donation Saves Lives'. This statement illustrates the grandeur of what a simple "YES" at the driver's license office has the ability to do.

Similarly, it gives passionate individuals the opportunity to publically show their support for this worthy cause.

To purchase your special Donate Life plate, visit your County Clerk's office.

"If you are a local organ, eye or tissue recipient and would like to share your story, we would love to hear from you," Robinson said. "We are always looking for new stories and faces to share with the Trust For Life." Contact Robinson at 502-839-3508.

To register as a donor, learn about the license plate, or to get involved, please call 866-945-5433.

From staff reports

The deadline to register to vote in the upcoming May 19 Primary Election is Monday, April 20, the secretary of state's office announced last week.

old by the date of the next general election,

Not be a convicted felon, or if convicted of a felony offense, must have obtained a restoration of civil rights,

Not claim the right to vote anywhere outside Kentucky.

Minors who are 17 years old but will be 18 years old on or before the General Election on Nov. 3 are eligible to register and vote in the upcoming Primary; however, they are not eligible to vote in special elections until they are 18 years old.

Voters who have recently moved need to update their voter registration information by no later than April 20.

Changes in party affiliation for the 2015 Primary Election were due by Dec. 31, 2014. Voters who changed their party affiliation after that date are not eli-

In life and eating, balance is key to everything we do

Balance is key in everything we do. Dancing all night is just as important as yoga in the morning. Relaxing on the couch and listening to the rain is just as important as taking a long walk in the sunshine. A good conversation with friends is just as important as sitting peacefully in a quiet room, and a breakfast feast of bacon, eggs, fried potatoes and biscuits and gravy is just as important as a bowl of fresh fruit and oatmeal.

Unfortunately, I've been indulging a little too much on the heartier breakfast and haven't paid as much attention to the healthier one. But the arrival of spring always gives me the boost I need to make some easy adjustments to my diet. Instead of sitting inside watching the snow fall, we've been busy preparing the yard for flowers and the garden for vegetables, taking long walks to the creek and hiking all over the farm as we keep our eye on the baby calves that are arriving daily.

I've temporarily traded in my beloved bacon and eggs for a very tasty smoothie or whole wheat toast and egg whites. Some of you probably want to stop reading but give me a chance first. Don't stop reading yet!

Smoothies, when done the right way, are not only good for you but also very yummy and fulfilling. Plus, it's a great way to sneak veggies into the diets of picky children (and adults).

You can mix them up with so many different ingredients. Pineapple, blueberries, bananas, mango, yogurt, kale, spinach, and the list goes on and on. Try adding one to your diet a few times a week and you'll see a big difference in the way you feel. Here are some of my favorite smoothie variations:

Spinach and Pineapple Smoothie
1/2 cup unsweetened almond milk
1/3 cup nonfat plain Greek yogurt
1 cup baby spinach
1 medium banana
1/2 cup fresh or frozen pineapple chunks
1 tablespoon chia seeds
1-2 teaspoons honey (optional)

Directions
Mix all ingredients in the blenders until smooth. Chia seeds add healthy omega-3 fats, fiber and a little protein for an extra nutrition.

Green Smoothie
2 cups kale (tough stems removed)
1/2 cup nonfat Greek yogurt
1 cup frozen blueberries
1 tbsp milled flax seed
1 cup unsweetened vanilla almond milk

Add 1-2 tbsp honey for extra sweetness (optional)

Flax seeds are a good source of omega-3 fats and fiber. Flax seeds have anti-inflammatory properties, promote bone health, and may help protect against heart disease, cancer and diabetes. Some studies have shown that nutrients in flax seeds can help prevent and lower high blood pressure and cholesterol.

Regardless of what new fruits and vegetables you add to your diet, remember that each step you take towards a healthier lifestyle is a good step and it's well worth it!

God says 'Give me another chance' to those who rebel

Recently, I met a young guy who told me about his faith journey with Jesus. He had grown up in church but didn't want to follow Jesus once he got older. He didn't go into details, but he said he was a knucklehead and did a lot of stuff he knew was wrong and didn't really want to do what's right. One day he was out driving and hydroplaned his car and it stopped just before going over a ledge. He said as he thought about what had just happened and how it could've ended, he heard God say to him, "Give me another chance." Tears welled in his eyes as he told me, "That totally broke me. God didn't say, 'I'll give you another chance,' but he asked me to give him another chance." With a request like that, he said he couldn't refuse. It's God's kindness that leads to repentance, the scripture says (Romans 2:4). On Sundays, my husband and I have been listening to a series of CD messages from Bible teacher Steve Brown, taken from his book, "A Scandalous Freedom." In last week's message, Steve talked about understanding who the real God is. To do that, Steve said, we need to identify the unreal gods we believe in. He named three: God as Santa Claus, God as a child abuser or God who's left the building. If we see God as Santa Claus, we worship a god who exists to make us happy, healthy and wealthy, saying yes to our prayers and blessing our agendas. If we name it, we can claim it. However, if that's our god and we don't experience what we want and expect, we grow bitter and angry and disappointed, turn away and lose faith. Those who see God as a child abuser believe he zaps people who get out of line and stay (if they stay at all) constantly insecure and fearful. They may know the scriptures about "God is love," but they don't really believe it and talk a lot about hell and sin, fire and brimstone. Those who view God as absent believe he set everything in motion, washed his hands and told humanity, "You're on your own." Steve said, "The problem with an uninvolved, uncaring, unfeeling god is that he tends to make one uninvolved, uncaring and unfeeling. This most miserable of all theological views robs one of passion ... Better to get angry at God than to simply accept what is without either a profanity or a whimper." So, what is God really like? He's like Jesus because he is Jesus. A servant King. An iron fist in a velvet glove. Kind, meek, gentle, humble. Uplifter of the contrite. Seeker and saver of the lost. Unafraid to call out the hypocrite. Mighty. Merciful. He's the kind of God who comes to die for people who don't deserve it and who stoops to enter a rebellious young man's car and say, "Give me another chance." If your god is a Santa Claus, you might be angry that you got into an accident in the first place. If your god is a child abuser you might expect to hear, "That's just a taste of what's coming next if you don't shape up." If your god is absent, well, he doesn't care anyway so he's not going to speak to you — and why bother speaking to him?

But the real God rarely does what you expect. As 100 percent sovereign and in control, he allows evil and hardship and works all things together for his glory and our good. He also surprises his people with his mercy, grace and kindness. "Give me another chance," he says to rebels. Steve told a story of a young wife and mother who runs away. Her husband tracks her down and calls to beg her to come home, but she refuses. Eventually, the husband humiliates himself and goes to get her. When she opens the door of her motel room and sees him, she falls into his arms. Later, the husband asks why she didn't respond to his phone calls. Steve said, "Her answer echoes every Christian who ever rebelled at the pain and ran from its source but who, nevertheless, returned home. 'Before it was only words,' she answers. 'Then you came!'" Our God comes to us. Jesus came for us, giving us another chance — many another chances. Sometimes he even asks us to give one to him.

'GLAD ALL OF THAT IS BEHIND ME'

A friend of mind recently spoke of two of the same churches being a mile apart and then said, "I am glad all of that is behind me." I know what they meant, considering the life style they are now living in the flesh. They have chosen to divorce their mate, have a baby out of wedlock and struggle in all sorts of ways. What does it mean to live in the flesh? "Galatians 5: 19 Now the works of the flesh are manifest, which are these; Adultery, fornication, uncleanness, lasciviousness, Gal 5:20 Idolatry, witchcraft, hatred, variance, emulations, wrath, strife, seditions, heresies, Gal 5:21 Envyings, murders, drunkenness, revellings, and such like: of the which I tell you before, as I have also told you in time past, that they which do such things shall not inherit the kingdom of God." This is the broad way of life that will lead eventually, if repentance doesn't take place, to eternal hell. Jesus said it this way, Mat 7:13 Enter ye in at the strait gate: for wide is the gate, and broad is the way, that leadeth to destruction, and many there be which go in thereat: Mat 7:14 Because strait is the gate, and narrow is the way, which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it. What did they leave behind? Everything of value! So sad!

Lessons from Little League

From one-hand catching to a real win, it's about the kids

There can't be too many days better than Opening Day. And when you add the words Little League to that title it's even better.

John Herndon
Sports Editor

As I snapped pictures and chatted with a few of the people attending Saturday's ceremony, I could not help but think back to the day when my own Little League coach came to me and said, "Get a catcher's mitt. We want to try you back there."

I was nine years old. I'd never even heard of Johnny Bench - he was still down on the farm in Buffalo, where the Reds' top farm team was at the time - but I knew about Johnny Edwards, Elston Howard and the other top receivers of the day. I got behind home plate, put that mitt up along with the my throwing hand, just like I was taught.

And I was hooked. The following year, I started driving my coaches crazy doing that one-hand catching like that rookie in Cincy who eventually earned near-universal acclaim as the greatest ever in his position.

Suffice it to say I never threatened him.

I know I couldn't hit. And watching some of the young catchers struggle with the mitt and all of that equipment Saturday made me wonder how much I did too.

But Little League, or Cal Ripken League or any other youth league is just one of those things that is right with the world.

Eventually I coached youth baseball for about five years and it was an experience. My kids wanted to play and the local youth leagues were begging for volunteers. I had some teams that rarely lost and had some that rarely won.

But I also learned some adult lessons about coaching youth sports.

First, you are always going to have a kid that refuses to pay attention in the field. Somehow, the other team is going to repeatedly hit to that kid.

It might be a kid that is getting his money's worth and is taking imaginary swings while playing right field. It might be one who has a future in agronomy and is studying the grass beneath his feet. Or it might be that future architect who is building his latest masterpiece with the infield dirt.

Regardless of where you put those kids in the field, the other team is going to hit to them. Mark it down.

And don't forget to laugh about it away from the game.

Another truth I learned is that a lot of people think the kid that is going to make it to the big leagues is theirs. They let you know about it too.

I could only laugh about that after seeing how many times I had bald spots on my head after pulling my hair out.

Obviously, there is nothing wrong with dreaming. Kids from Shelby County, Oldham County and Henry County have made it to the big show, even if the stay was brief. Without a dream, it wouldn't happen.

But reality is that only a miniscule amount of kids who play baseball at the high school level will get even a chance to play in the minors. Fewer than 10 percent of those make it to the majors.

The odds against the dream coming true are staggering.

The most important thing I learned from youth leagues?

That's easy. The kids are the reason we have them. Kids usually want to learn and always want to have fun. As far as I am concerned, those two things are all that matters.

Several years ago, I was in a store in Louisville when a young man came up to me and said, "Do you remember me?"

Honestly, I thought he looked familiar but I could not place him. It had been about 15 years or so, but after he told me his name, I remembered him as the little 8-year-old who sometimes made me wish I had brought a lasso to practices and games.

"You coached my baseball team when we lived in Lawrenceburg," he said.

He smiled, we talked a minute or two and went our way.

I had remembered his team as one of the better ones I coached, but we didn't win any championship trophies that year.

That day, however, the trophies really didn't matter.

WAMPLER RULES IN GOVERNORS' CLASSIC

Lady Bearcats place second in Woodford tournament

By John Herndon
Sports Editor

Hannah Wampler has officially served notice she should be in the conversation when the discussion turns to the top girls' high school tennis players in central Kentucky.

The Anderson County senior rolled through the Governors' Classic Tournament, winning the individual championship and leading the Lady Bearcats to the runner-up finish in the four team tournament, held at Woodford County Park on Saturday.

Wampler remained unbeaten on the year and defeated Tia The, of Lexington Catholic in the final match and had beaten Simon Kenton's Mandy Chen and Lexington Catholic's Julia Harris along the way.

Lexington Catholic took the team championship.

"Hannah is such a talented player," Anderson's first-year coach, Kristen Hamrick, said. "Not only is she a great player, she always has a positive attitude and encourages her teammates."

Wampler, who qualified for the state tournament as a freshmen when playing doubles, has her sights set on returning to the state during her last high school season. She has signed to play tennis and the University of the Cumberlands.

Anderson's No. 2 singles player, Rebekah Cardwell, captured a tie-breaker win over a Simon Kenton opponent that allowed the Lady Bearcats to win the runner-up finish. "Had she not won, we couldn't have placed second as a team," Hamrick said.

Senior Brenda Brooks and seventh-grader Kieran Birdwhistell dropped their first round match to the eventual runner-up team Jane Watts and Addison Beck of Woodford County while the team of Ally Hayes and Jacy Isaacs fell to the Simon Kenton tandem of Olivia Bowling and Emily Montgomery.

Hamrick was thrilled for her team as it had its best one day showing of the season.

"God is so good," she said. "I knew that I had an

Bat Cats drop two at Madison Central

Jorette has big day, despite losses

By John Herndon
Sports Editor

Anderson County dropped a pair of games in a three-team triangle event at Madison Central High School on Saturday. The Bearcats dropped a contest to the host school in the opener, then fell to Conner in the second game. Madison Central went on to defeat Conner to complete the day.

Madison Central, now 13-2 on the year, got five runs in the first inning and that was all the Indians needed to defeat the Bearcats, 7-3, in the event's opening game. It was also Madison Central's first home game of the season.

Madison Central reached Anderson starter Connor wells early. Wells gave up three walks and three hits as the Indians took command.

"After this horrific start, he allowed zero runs in the next four innings, keeping us in the game, where we once again struggled to hit consistently," Anderson coach L.W. Barnes said.

Moore fires no-hitter against Top 20 team

Lady Bearcats run winning string to 11, face big week

By John Herndon
Sports Editor

If Ally Moore pitches like this when she is not feeling well, what will she do when she is full strength?

Moore, an Anderson County junior, totally silenced the Louisville Holy Cross bats, firing a no-hitter as the Lady Bearcats prevailed, 2-1, in the final game of the Lafayette Invitational, held Saturday in Lexington.

Moore held the Cougars, ranked No. 16 in the state in the Kentucky Softball Coaches Association poll, hitless while striking out seven and walking one.

"Ally threw a heck of a game," Anderson coach Brent Aldridge said, noting that Moore kept the Cougar hitters guessing through the contest.

Moore had been feeling under the weather, prompting Aldridge to use his daughter, Mia Aldridge, in back-to-back games Friday night and Saturday morning.

Moore, however, came back on Saturday afternoon to post her gem. "Ally pitched lightly in both (earlier) games just to keep the rust off," Aldridge said. "It's good to have two solid pitchers because when a situation like that occurs, we know we will not suffer."

"Ally had time to rest and although still not 100 percent, she battled hard against Holy Cross."

The Anderson coach said Holy Cross took advantage of four Anderson errors and its only run was unearned. The Cougars scored in the top of the fourth when the leadoff hitter reached on a two-base error, then came around on consecutive ground outs.

Anderson had taken a quick lead in the bottom of the first when leadoff hitter Missa Walker walked then small-balled her way around the bases, eventually scoring on a passed ball.

The Lady Bearcats, now 14-2, sealed their 11th straight win in their last at-bat when Kaci Currens delivered a one-out when Worth Sparrow tagged a single, scoring Wesley Jorette, who had reached on an error, then stole second base to lead off the game.

Sparrow delivered two of Anderson's three hits and scored two of Anderson's runs. Sparrow reached base in all three of his plate appearances.

Brice Stockton had Anderson's other hit while Daniel Whalen had a sacrifice fly, sacrifice bunt and a walk. Bryndon Labhart also had a sacrifice fly.

Conner 5, Anderson Co. 4

Conner got three runs in the top of the fifth, then held off Anderson for a 5-4 win.

Anderson fell to 4-5 on the year while Conner improved to 5-2.

"Daniel Whalen got his first varsity start on the mound and pitched extremely well, giving up three earned runs while working into the fifth," Barnes said.

Conner led 2-1 going into the fifth when Barnes "left (Whalen) in too long. I should have changed pitchers going into the fifth and it cost us."

Dowell came on to finish out the contest. "Both Whalen and Dowell threw great," Barnes said.

With Conner up 5-1, Anderson scored twice in the sixth. Jorette got things started with a single. After he stole second, Stockton reached on an error and Sparrow walked. Whalen then drew a one-out walk to drive in a run. One out later, Labhart drew a walk to make it 5-3, but the rally died with the bases loaded.

In the bottom of the seventh, Jorette doubled, then stole his third base of the day before scoring on Brett Thompson's sacrifice fly. The rally ended, however, with the tying run on second.

"We just couldn't get the big hit needed in the sixth and seventh," Barnes said.

Bearcats to tangle with Shelby

The Bearcats host Shelby County Thursday night at 5:30 p.m. in Anderson's first district game of the season.

Shelby has lost to 30th District favorite Collins. The contest is always a hard fought battle with post-season seeding implications, but in the first half of the season, it appears that all four district teams - Spencer County is the other club - are capable of beating each other. However, seeding could be a major factor as the higher seeded team in the district tournament will be the home team - and will have the advantage of batting last - through the first round of the post-season.

always had a strong tennis program."

Boys have learning experience

The Anderson boys were shut out on their side of the tournament, which included Woodford, Lexington Catholic and Franklin County.

Lexington Catholic took the team title with Franklin County second.

"The boys played well," Anderson coach T.J. Spivey said. "We drew Lexington Catholic three of our four matches, which was tough because they are a strong team."

Spivey noted that Lyndon Cornish played strong against Nick Lewis of Franklin County in the first round.

Cornish took the first set 6-4, but Lewis recovered for a 6-3 win in the second frame. Lewis then won the tie-breaker, 10-7, to advance.

"That could have gone either way," Spivey said. "Overall, (Saturday) was a great experience for us and should help us get ready for regional play."

Sims jumps over Creek field

From staff reports

Anderson County High School sophomore Alorra Sims backed up her reputation as one of Kentucky's best jumpers when she took first place in the long jump at the Tates Creek Commodore Classic Saturday in Lexington.

Sims soared 16-feet-11-inches, tying a school record in the event. Sims, who finished third in the state in the event last year, is considered a serious contender for the state championship. Sims also placed sixth in the 100-meter hurdles and third in the 300-meter hurdles. It was the best showing of any Anderson harrier on Saturday.

Juniors Connor Duncan and Nathan McGregor were very strong on the boys' side with Duncan placing second in the 300-meter hurdles at 40.51 while senior Casey Moninger was third in the 400-meter dash at 51.85. Moninger has been coming off a nagging injury and Anderson coach Keith Brown said Moninger is being brought along slowly.

McGregor took third in the shot put with throw of 121-03. He was also fifth in the discus throw.

As a team, however, Anderson was short-handed and without all of its performers, "for various reasons," Brown said. "We should have scored a few more." The Anderson girls scored 17 points, all from Sims, and finished well back in the pack. The Bearcat boys scored 24 points, good enough for ninth in the 22-team field.

"We were extremely happy with the majority of the kids," Brown said.

"We need the weather to straighten out so we can get some practice on a consistent basis."

The Track Cats travel to Henry Clay High School on Saturday for the prestigious Heart of the Bluegrass meet.

Duncan leads middle schoolers in Lafayette meet

Eighth-grader Carley Duncan took first place in the girls' 100-meter hurdles to lead the Anderson County Middle School track team at the Lafayette meet Friday in Lexington.

Duncan, who was timed at 19.48 in the 100, was also second in the 300-meter hurdles at 58.60.

Kynan Russell was third in the boys' 100-meter dash.

SOFTBALL

double. After moving to third on a passed ball, Currans scored when Mia Aldridge sent a rocket to second base. While retiring Aldridges, the Cougars misplayed the ball and allowed Currans score.

The event was not a tournament, but simply a round-robin affair with each team playing the other three teams involved.

"We struggled at the plate," Brent Aldridge said, "I would say we had only four well-hit balls (against Holy Cross). We have to do a better job at that."

However, after scoring a pair of unearned runs themselves, the Lady Bearcats still found a way to win.

Anderson Co. 7, Mercer Co. 4

Anderson defeated Mercer County for the second time in five days when they claimed a 7-4 win over the Titans Saturday morning at Lafayette.

Anderson had beaten Mercer, 7-1, on the Lady Bearcat field the previous Monday.

A three-run outburst with two out in the bottom of the third put the Lady Bearcats up 4-1. Bailey Curry's two-run homer, her ninth longball of the season, gave the Lady Bearcats all the offense they needed.

Alissa Vest might have had her best day of the season, pounding a pair of doubles, while Mia Aldridge delivered three hits, including a double.

Aldridge picked up the win, striking out 10 and scattering six hits.

Mercer fell to 8-7 after losing all three games in the Lafayette Invitational.

Anderson Co. 6, Lafayette 4

Anderson broke a 2-2 tie with a three-run rally in the top of the third to defeat the host school, 6-4, in the classic's opener Friday night.

Curry doubled to drive in Missa Walker, who had reached on an error. That gave Anderson a 3-2 lead the Lady Bearcats never relinquished.

Corrin Robinson, who also reached on an error, came home on a passed ball to make it 4-2. Anderson had taken a 2-0 lead in the first when Walker and Robinson reached on errors, then scored on a pair of defensive miscues.

In all, four of Anderson's six runs were unearned.

Mia Aldridge got the win with Moore picking up a save.

"(The umpire called) a very tight strike zone and both of my pitchers struggled," Brent Aldridge said. "We had too many errors. It was not a very clean game and showed us we still need to continue to improve."

"We came out flat Friday against Lafayette. The umpiring was questionable and not only did my pitchers let it affect them, but my catcher did as well. We committed more errors than what was recorded and we need to clean that up. We need to get some practice time on the field but the weather apparently does not want that to happen. The positive is we still found a way to win, which is what good teams do."

Anderson Co. 7, Mercer Co. 1 (April 6)

Anderson County jumped on Mercer County early, then rode a stellar pitching performance from Moore to whip the visiting Titans, 7-1, last Monday night.

Moore went all seven innings, yielding just three hits and one unearned run to get the win. Moore struck out two but did not walk any.

"Ally Moore pitched a gem," Anderson coach Brent Aldridge said.

Currans gave the Lady Bearcats all the offense they would need when she belted a three-run home run in the bottom of the first. Currans went 2-for-3 and drove in four runs for the Lady Bearcats. Bailey Curry also had two hits.

"Defensively, we played solid, with only one error," Aldridge said. "Hitting-wise, we seemed to struggle but the strike zone was very pitcher friendly."

Mercer pitcher Kaylee Russell battled the Lady Bearcats, but Anderson's firepower was simply too much. Anderson improved to 11-2 while Mercer fell to 8-3.

Lady Cats ranked seventh by state's coaches

The Anderson girls

climbed to the seventh spot in the Kentucky Softball Coaches Association poll last week. It could be the highest ranking the Anderson program has ever attained.

The 2009 team was ranked in the Top 10 for the last few weeks of the season but had a meltdown in the district and regional tournaments.

In the True Rank poll, a mathematical poll determined by a computer ranking, the Lady Bearcats are ranked sixth, but in that poll, they are ranked No. 2 in the Eighth Region behind Oldham County, which is ranked No. 5.

Aldridge said he is more concerned with the Lady Bearcats getting better.

"We really don't speak about rankings that much other than telling the girls they have a target on their back and they have to come ready to play each night," Aldridge said. "Our goal is to improve and be the first softball team to be back-to-back regional champs and ultimately win (the) state. If the girls continue to stay focused, this team will definitely be one of the better teams in Anderson County softball history."

"If we get caught up thinking we are better than we are, you might be talking about the 2015 team that imploded."

Big week ahead

Anderson can take a giant step toward the top seed in the 30th District tournament when the Lady Bearcats take on Collins Wednesday night in Shelbyville.

Game time is 6 p.m.

Collins is ranked in the top five of the Eighth Region, but well behind Anderson and Oldham. Aldridge, however, says new Collins coach Charlie LeCompte, a long-time assistant at Shelby County, has the Titans playing well. Collins stood at 7-4 at the end of last week but had not played any district games.

Anderson is 2-0 in district play.

The Lady Bearcats head to the Capital City Showcase Friday and Saturday at Lakeview Park in Frankfort. The Lady Bearcats open with Conner, which was unbeaten in eight games through the weekend, Friday night. Saturday, The Lady Bearcats get a chance to see Oldham County when the teams play at 10:30 a.m.

Curry, Rogers continue to pound the ball

Bailey Curry continues to hit at an unheard of pace at the varsity season's midpoint. In addition to her nine home runs, Curry checked in with a batting average of .652 and an on base percentage of .698. Curry also has 23 RBI.

Sophomore Sammy Rogers is also wreaking havoc on the opposition, hitting .545 and getting on base at a .565 pace.

On the pitching rubber, Moore's 0.92 earned run average paces the team but Mia Aldridge is close behind at 1.56.

Senior Cameron Peyton won the individual title, defeating teammate Makayela Lewis in a shootoff. Both finished the day with a 291 score. ## Streams and fishing will return to normal

Elkhorn Creek a good spot for wading

By Lee McClellan
Ky. Dept. of Fish & Wildlife Resources

Many of us who remember the March 1997 floods in Kentucky recently had uncomfortable pangs of foreboding as storm systems dropped heavy amounts of rain freight-trained across the state.

It looked like another 1997 for a day or so. Small, normally docile neighborhood creeks suddenly filled basements, eroded roadways and carried away belongings.

"The biggest problem from all of this rain is not only is the flow too high to fish, but it will take awhile for the clarity to come back," said David Baker, stream biologist for the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources. "Temperatures are in the mid-to high 50s on some streams, so it will soon be a good time for fishing. We just need a little more time."

Baker believes smallmouth bass waters lying downstream of major lakes such as Green River or Barren River will likely be blown out for a considerable time. Smaller streams clear and return to normal much quicker than larger streams and make the best option for smallmouth bass right now.

"This is a time when you can catch some of the biggest stream smallmouth of the year as they prepare to spawn," Baker said. "They are a little more accessible and easier to catch."

Wading is an excellent way to fish smaller streams for smallmouth bass, especially after the recent high water events likely undercut many streamside trees, tipping them over into the stream, providing potentially dangerous impediments to paddling.

The streams in south-central Kentucky near Bowling Green in the Barren River drainage such as the Gasper River and the Drakes Creek system are good places to try.

Baker said the Drakes Creek system drains a large geographical area in karst topography and takes longer to flow out, but contains a healthy population of smallmouth bass from 12 to 16 inches long, with a few in the 18-inch range.

Baker said those streams flowing through public land in eastern Kentucky provide productive wading fishing opportunities for smallmouths. The Middle Fork of the Red River inside Natural Bridge State Resort Park in Powell County holds a decent population of smallmouth bass with good access.

Rock Creek inside the Daniel Boone National Forest in McCreary County offers wading anglers easy access with roads paralleling the creek for most of its length. The best fishing is upstream of Rock Creek's junction with White Oak Creek.

Elkhorn Creek in Franklin County fishes well even when the water is up a bit. Anglers may wade fish the Elkhorn at T.N. Sullivan Wildlife Management Area off KY 1262 and at the two Voluntary Public Access spots near the junction of Peaks Mill Road (KY 1900) and KY 1262.

All the lures you need for a successful wade easily fit inside a cigar box. A pack of 1/8-ounce leadheads, some black finesse worms, a bag of green-pumpkin tube baits along with a bag of 4-inch Senko type soft plastic jerkbaits in the same color all catch stream smallmouths. Add a floating/diving minnow lure like a Rapala and you're set.

"Look for gravelly bottoms adjacent to the current," Baker said. "A lot of times you can see the smallmouths in spring. Pitch a tube or soft plastic bait rigged on a leadhead near them and they will attack. Also, work areas adjacent to current with a soft plastic jerkbait or a floating/diving minnow for smallmouths. The thing I love most about smaller streams is that any cast can be a good one."

EARTH DAY

UPCYCLING

Earth Day is April 22. One of the best things you can do on that day and every day is to follow the three Rs: reduce, reuse and recycle.

Following the three Rs keeps things out of the landfill. Reduce means to use less of something, like taking shorter showers to save water or reading an online magazine to save paper. Reuse means to use something again, like refilling a shampoo bottle or using a glass jar as a vase. Recycling means to use old things to make new things, like saving all of your old aluminum cans for the recycler so they can be used to make new cans.

Upcycling is a combination of recycling and reusing. Instead of setting things on the curb to be recycled, you find a better use for them. Old clothes, for example, make great pillows and quilts.
